

Summary Bio:

Dr. Lynn Tincher-Ladner

Dr. Lynn Tincher-Ladner is President and CEO of Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society, the nation's oldest and largest honor society for students seeking associate degrees and credentials from community colleges. Most of Lynn's time is spent creating opportunities for some of the nation's hardest working students by connecting them to life-changing scholarships and family-sustaining employment. With nearly 30 years in higher education, she has been a community college math, chemistry, and physics instructor; computer programmer; database administrator; institutional researcher; and university faculty member. She serves on national boards for the College Promise Campaign, the Center for Community College Student Engagement, the American Association of Community Colleges' Commission on Student Success, and the advisory board of the Woodward Hines Education Foundation. As a passionate champion for community colleges and community college students, she loves using data to tell their stories and to advocate for the support of these amazing students and quality institutions of higher learning. Follow Lynn on Twitter at @TincherLadner.